

Webinar Series: Forced Migration

Rethinking Stability and Upheaval: How Women Entrepreneurs are Reclaiming Hope in a Palestinian Refugee Camp

Friday 26 February 2021

Dr Christina Schwabenland University of Bedfordshire

The ords 'ref gee' and 'camp' generall carr con otations of transience and impermanence.

Ho e er, for Palestinian 'ref gees' li ingin camps in Lebanon, these concepts take on di erent meanings. The camps, ere established one role ears ago and, hile the mo ement of ref gees from S ria masincreased the mobers of people li ingintue camps, the majorith are of the second or third generation of ref gees. The are stateless and mationless, li ingin, hat Hana et al (2012) describe as 'encla es of e ception'. Yet meither the political resol tions of ret rolor assimilation are a ailable to r.1 (ef ge)10 tren-1 Td(sc. T10 e)T()Tj7. p200 er, 1 T. trand responses to social inj stice, incl ding, ork on di ersit management and gender dinamics. Her presentation is based on three eld ork trips to Lebanon and to to Palestine bet een 2016 - 2019.